ATCO Gas invests in the rebuilding of the Acme Community Hall

Acme, Alberta — ATCO Gas is donating $10,000 in support of Acme's efforts to rebuild the Acme Community Hall. The previous community hall was lost to fire in March of 2004 after 55 years of service.

This new hall will once again serve as an important community facility for social functions, gatherings and meetings. The donation is being presented today to Acme Mayor Glen Rieger by ATCO Gas's district supervisor, Doug Sharpe.

Sharpe said ATCO's donation will help address the urgent need for a local community gathering place in the district. He added that this new facility – an important part of the community's social fabric – will help strengthen the sense of community and kinship among area residents.

"The hall will be in the heart of the Acme and District community and will benefit the village and surrounding district for many years," Sharpe explained. "We are pleased to support projects that not only enrich the quality of life of our service communities but also enhance community spirit and strength."

ATCO Gas is a member of the ATCO Group of Companies.
